

Bibliography of Dissertations on Adult Learning for Teachers of Piano and Piano Pedagogy

Piano

Brightbill, J. M. (1983). The design, implementation, and evaluation of a class piano program to improve coordination in the older adult (Doctoral dissertation, California State University, Fullerton, 1983). Dissertation Abstracts International.

Chen, H. (1996). An investigation of self-directed learning among non-music major adult piano learners in one-to-one piano instruction (Doctoral dissertation, Columbia University Teachers College, 1996). Dissertation Abstracts International.

Conda, J. M. (1997). The late bloomers piano club: a case study of a group in progress (Doctoral dissertation, University of Oklahoma, 1997). Dissertation Abstracts International.

Covington, V. L. (1981). Approaches to piano reading in a selected sample of current instructional materials for adult beginners (Doctoral dissertation, University of Illinois at Urbana-Champaign, 1981). Dissertation Abstracts International.

Curran, J. M. (1982). A design for the development and implementation of a beginning group piano curriculum for leisure age adults (Doctoral dissertation, University of Oklahoma, 1982). Dissertation Abstracts International.

Goetz, L. A. (1996). The returning adult student: standard and andragogical methods used in the preparation and pedagogy of J. S. Bach's Prelude and Fugue 1, BWV 846 ("The Well-Tempered Clavier, Bk. I") (Doctoral dissertation, Duquesne University, 1996). Dissertation Abstracts International.

He, H. J. (1995). The comparison of the effects of two computer-based music instructional programs in teaching piano note reading to adults through two different delivery systems (Doctoral dissertation, University of Illinois at Urbana-Champaign, 1995). Dissertation Abstracts International.

Johnson, R. G. (1982). An investigation of the initiating interests of two sub-groups of adult beginning pianists participating in a class piano teaching environment (Doctoral dissertation, The Ohio State University, 1982). Dissertation Abstracts International.

Pike, P. M. (2001). Leisure piano lessons: a case study of lifelong learning (Doctoral dissertation, University of Oklahoma, 2001). Dissertation Abstracts International.

Rogers, C. L. (1999). The effects of two instructional methods on two piano improvisational skills exhibited while performing hymn accompaniments by beginning adult piano improvisers (Doctoral dissertation, University of North Carolina at Greensboro, 1999). Dissertation Abstracts International.

Music (general and non-piano)

Bell, C. L. (2000). An examination of adult amateur community chorus and choral conductor rehearsal behavior with implications for music education (Doctoral dissertation, Columbia University Teachers College, 2000). Dissertation Abstracts International.

Bernhart, J. H. L. (1991). A project in the teaching of guided music listening lessons to older adults (Doctoral dissertation, Temple University, 1991). Dissertation Abstracts International.

Bowles, C. L. (1988). An assessment of self-expressed music education interests and music experiences by adult music audiences: implications for music education (Doctoral dissertation, University of Texas at Austin, 1988). Dissertation Abstracts International.

Chiodo, P. A. (1997). The development of lifelong commitment: a qualitative study of adult instrumental music participation (Doctoral dissertation, State University of New York at Buffalo, 1997). Dissertation Abstracts International.

Edgington, D. V. (1992). The process of deriving a structure of a program of music education for senior citizens (Doctoral dissertation, University of Colorado at Boulder, 1992). Dissertation Abstracts International.

Graessle, R. K. (1998). Adult music programming in member schools of the national guild of community schools of the arts (Doctoral dissertation, University of Oklahoma, 1998). Dissertation Abstracts International.

Keenan, K. J. (1995). Opinions, attitudes, music skills, and acquired knowledge of older adults using an adapted version of a technology-assisted music education curriculum (Doctoral dissertation, The Ohio State University, 1995). Dissertation Abstracts International.

Myers, D. E. (1986). An investigation of the relationship between age and music learning in adults (Doctoral dissertation, University of Michigan, 1986). Dissertation Abstracts International.

Simmons, D. A. (1994). The development and evaluation of an instructional guide for the guitar teacher of the adult student (Doctoral dissertation, Columbia University Teachers College, 1994). Dissertation Abstracts International.

Spencer, W. D. (1996). An attitude assessment of amateur musicians in adult community bands (Doctoral dissertation, University of North Texas, 1996). Dissertation Abstracts International.

Titcomb, T. J. (2000). The social context of adult learning: an ethnography of a church choir. (Doctoral dissertation, Temple University, 2000). Dissertation Abstracts International.

Vincent, P. M. (1997). A study of community choruses in Kentucky and implications for music education (Doctoral dissertation, University of Kentucky, 1997). Dissertation Abstracts International.

Non-music

Alexander, M. W. (1996). The learning needs of people over the age of 60 (Doctoral dissertation, University of North Dakota, 1996). Dissertation Abstracts International.

Duncan, H. H. (1993). Meanings and motivations among older adult mall-walkers: a qualitative analysis (Doctoral dissertation, Virginia Polytechnic Institute and State University, 1993). Dissertation Abstracts International.

Kahn, A. P. (1997). Healthy aging: a study of self-perceptions of well-being (Doctoral dissertation, The Union Institute, 1997). Dissertation Abstracts International.

Nutt, T. E. (2001). Bridging healthy pathways: successful aging and psychological well-being through social networks and learning (Doctoral dissertation, Texas A&M University, 2001). Dissertation Abstracts International.

Price, A. S. S. (1999). The perceptions of selected older adults about the impact of a university adult education program on their lives: a phenomenological study (Doctoral dissertation, University of Tennessee, 1999). Dissertation Abstracts International.

Rugh, M. M. (1990). The etiology of visual arts expression with an older woman: patterns of meaning and metaphor in late life learning (Doctoral dissertation, University of Oklahoma, 1990). Dissertation Abstracts International.

Struss, H. A. (1994). The relationship of senior citizens' learning interest and age, gender, and education level (Doctoral dissertation, University of Alaska Anchorage, 1994). Dissertation Abstracts International.

Weaver-Coleman, K. (1998). Valley Forge Elderhostel participants' perception of lifelong learning: the influence of life changes (Doctoral dissertation, Walden University, 1998). Dissertation Abstracts International.

Workman, G. J. (1996). Seniors learning sports: a qualitative inquiry regarding the meanings in learning and participating in physical activity (Doctoral dissertation, The Ohio State University, 1996). Dissertation Abstracts International.